This darling little seedling of 'Kim's Knee High' is the most dwarf, compact Echinacea to date, reaching only 10-12 inches tall in full bloom at maturity. It was discovered amongst a stand of 'Kim's Knee High' by Eric Stahlheber of Southernwood Gardens in Jonesboro, IL.

From midsummer into early fall, bright lavender pink flowers measuring about 2½ inches across with an orange cone are produced prolifically. Deadheading prolongs the bloom time.

The plants are extremely well-branched with healthy, mid-green, linear leaves. Its petite stature and long bloom time make this the perfect selection for patio pots or the front of the flower border.
